

Tech firms driving office demand

The amount of office construction in Dublin is at levels seen in the last property boom, but there is still little evidence of overcapacity in the market, said property agent HWBC. It said that more than 4m sq ft of office space is under construction in Dublin but demand from big technology firms is growing, meaning the market for prime office space is continuing to strengthen.